Bugfixes: no, it does not do any other things than killing popup windows Credits: Appnote by Eric Alvaert, Eindhoven University of Technology U.S. Patent 5,822,498 Rep. Justin Amash, the only Republican in Congress to call for Trump's impeachment, faced a swarm of angry tweets in the hours after his announcement on Twitter on Thursday afternoon. "This is going to sound a bit crazy but since President Trump won't remove himself, my conclusion is that the only way to remove him is to remove the entire cabinet, and the only way to do that is for the Congress to remove itself," Amash said. The Michigan congressman's call to impeach Trump was met with outrage from Trump backers who accused him of treason. His fellow Republicans — most of them, anyway — quickly fell in line. ADVERTISEMENT “So long as Amash remains in Congress, he cannot be assured safe from the fate of those whose actions have left our Republican government of limited and enumerated powers. Amash’s
