The use of StegJ is free and open source software and you can use it as a personal instrument. Support StegJ is developed by HashiCorp which provides many functionalities for free. In addition, you can ask for other features that you need. If you need any feature, you can contact HashiCorp by sending an email to support@HashiCorp.com. Download Download StegJ: Contact Contact HashiCorp: Email: support@HashiCorp.com Phone: +44-1243-44-44444 A: Did you use this? A: I am working on a program called 'Stego' which can hide messages inside files. I would like to point out that the concept of a steganographic protocol (as used by Stego) is actually patented (U.S. Pat. No. 4,977,594, and is also covered by the European Patent Application 2,923,400) by Eric Hughes and others. Stego is also based on the following paper: Introduction to steganography. In: Handbook of steganography, pp. 22-48. Ed. by N. N. Bogas, I. M. Bellare, and D. J. Costello, Springer-Verlag, 2003. You can search around the internet for the term 'steganography' to see many other examples. Stego is not a free software and doesn't pretend to be. It is the type of software used by practitioners of steganography. Stego is released under the GNU GPLv3 license. t i s h e f i r s t d e r i v a t i v e o f - 9 9 0 8 * u + 1 2
